Behind the Seating

IF THE NAME DAVID ALLAN PESSO does not ring a bell, then you haven't been paying much attention to the furniture around the office. The Hartford, Connecticut-based Pessa, principal at New Studio, has created designs for Design Link, Loewenstein, Helikon, and David Edward as well as Tuohy, Davis, AGI, and Brayton. He is responsible for the millwork and freestanding furniture at Otis Elevator's world headquarters and the executive offices at the Patrons Insurance Group. He was the in-house product designer for the contract wood furniture manufacturer Hardwood House and on the staff of Vinick Associates, an interior design firm specializing in retail and corporate design.

Now Pessa has lent his expertise to Geiger Brickel, who, for the first time in its 36-year history, has created a line of seating and tables for the transitional market. The Heritage collection, which includes wood guest and upholstered lounge seating and occasional tables, pays homage to 19th-century historical references while complementing contemporary design. Included in the series are the Ayrton guest chair, lounge seating, and tables; Cheshire and Woburn lounge seating, and Ashbourne and Farrington tables.
